National Policy Director

Children's Advocacy Institute

Amy Harfeld serves as the National Policy Director at the Children's Advocacy Institute. She has been a passionate child advocate, educator, and public interest attorney for 25 years. Having represented the state agency, dependent children, and incarcerated parents in New York City, she brings a uniquely balanced perspective to her child welfare and foster youth advocacy. Amy launched her career in public service as a Teach For America corps member. She has coordinated the National Coalition to End Child Abuse Deaths, served as Executive Director of First Star, and directed the Children's Leadership Council. Also, she led the American Bar Association's Commission on Youth at Risk.

Amy obtained her bachelor's degree from the University of Michigan and her Juris Doctorate from City University of New York School of Law. She lives in the Washington, D.C. area.
