

Supplemental Security Income (SSI) in Rhode Island

What is SSI?

Supplemental Security Income (SSI) is a federal program that provides monthly payments to people with limited income and resources. SSI is for people who are 65 or older, as well as people of any age, including children, who are blind or who have disabilities.

To qualify for SSI, you must also have little or no income and few resources. The value of the things you own must be less than $2,000 if you're single or less than $3,000 for married couples living together. We don't count the value of your home if you live in it, and, usually, we don't count the value of your car. We may not count the value of certain other resources either, such as a burial plot.

To get SSI, you must also apply for any other government benefits for which you may be eligible.

You must live in the United States or the Northern Mariana Islands to get SSI. If you're not a U.S. citizen, but you lawfully reside in the United States, you still may be able to get SSI. For more information, read Supplemental Security Income (SSI) for Noncitizens (Publication No. 05-11051).

The state of Rhode Island adds money to the federal payment. We issue a single payment to those living in residential care, assisted living facilities, or a licensed adult community supportive living residence providing advance care.

The payment includes both the federal SSI payment and the supplement from Rhode Island.

If you live independently, in someone else's household, or in a Medicaid facility, you get a separate payment from Rhode Island.

Medical assistance

If you get SSI, you usually can get medical assistance (Medicaid) automatically. If you have questions about Medicaid, contact your local health or human services office.

Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP)

If you get SSI, you may be able to get help through SNAP, formerly known as food stamps. SNAP can help you buy more food without spending more money. However, we don't decide if you qualify for SNAP. If everyone in your household is applying for or getting SSI, you can apply for SNAP at a Social Security office. If not, you must apply at your local health or human services office.

Other social services

People who qualify for SSI are often eligible for additional programs and services provided by their local county health or human services office. These other services or benefits may include:

- Information, referral, and follow-up.
- Homemaker and chore services.
- Community placement services.
- Rehabilitation services.

For more information, contact your local health or human services office.
